56. Mistletoe is a festive symbol because of its association with holiday traditions and the legend that connects it to love and renewal. However, it is also a harmful plant because it is parasitic, drawing nutrients from trees and potentially causing them harm or even killing them.
57. The tradition of kissing under mistletoe comes from an ancient legend in which mistletoe was used to pierce a hero's heart, leading to his death. He was later revived by his mother, turning mistletoe into a symbol of love and life. This story evolved into the modern custom of kissing under mistletoe as a sign of affection and good will during the holidays.

66. Liechtenstein and Switzerland have a close and mutually beneficial relationship. Liechtenstein uses Swiss currency and relies on Switzerland for postal services, though it has its own postage stamps. This close association reflects their economic and administrative cooperation despite Liechtenstein's smaller size compared to Switzerland.
67. Liechtenstein's monarchy is significant as it represents a historical form of governance that has persisted into modern times. The principality is ruled by a prince, and the country maintains traditional practices, such as male-only voting and a lifestyle centered around farming and cheese-making. This traditional approach contributes to Liechtenstein's unique identity and peaceful nature, emphasizing continuity and stability in its small, yet impactful, society.
