| 1. A | 43. B | 57. Answers should be similar to : The master is trying to show the magistrate that his entrapment and oppression of something as beautiful, wild, and symbolic as the dragon through wealth is amoral. Here, the dragon is representing that which is free and powerful and should be in the sky, not the ground. Also, the magistrate's wealth is seen as a hamperance – wealth can be no substitute for good character, and money cannot buy beauty or class. |
